Reflection on St Francis Xavier

26th March 2017

example challenges us all to be missionaries in our own times. And, while Francis chose to travel to Asia for his missionary work, we do not need to go that far to find people to evangelise. The Chinese character for crisis also contains another word which is opportunity. I honestly believe that the shortage of priests opens up opportunities for many lay ministries to flourish in our parishes as people take on roles and responsibilities that were previously reserved for priests. Many parishes have a large number of committed people involved in a wide range of ministries from Baptism, to funerals to liturgy to church decoration to music and ministers of the Word and of the Eucharist.

The challenge that we face in the years to come is to encourage the next generation of people in our parish to get involved and to put into practice the priesthood that we have all received at our Baptisms by sharing our faith. I see great hope with parish RCIA programmes where 15 adults have participated in Donaghmede over the past few years. The Rite of Christian Initiation of Adults (RCIA) provides an opportunity for people to receive the sacraments later in life and, with their commitment and enthusiasm, to bring new life and energy to the church.

Each and every one of us has a duty and responsibility to share our faith with others. It should not, as the Gospel says, be hidden away. Of course, each of our lives and our circumstances are different. But whether we are at work, at home or at school, there are many ways that we can respond to our Gospel calling by reaching out to others and helping those in need. St Vincent de Paul once said "Do whatever good lies at your hands" and St Teresa of Calcutta often encouraged people to find Calcutta in their own communities.

It is important for us to focus on small acts of kindness that can mean so much to people, allow a little more time for prayer and reflection, perhaps reading a piece of scripture and reflecting on how our skills and abilities can assist our local community. As Church, I think we can only move forward together in the coming years by working collaboratively as lay people, catechists, youth workers, priests, sisters and deacons as we try to respond to the call of the Gospel in our times.

NASA, the US space agency, recently discovered a new solar system filled with planets that look like earth and could support life. Three of those planets appear to satisfy many of the most important requirements for life - they are the right temperature, about the same size as Earth, and may have water.

Christopher Columbus discovered America in 1492 just a decade before St Francis Xavier's birth in 1506. So, he was born into the excitement a world of great discovery of new countries and new continents. The mission territories that Francis later sought to evangelise were to the people of his time as mysterious and exotic as the new solar systems are to us. St Francis was a missionary who took literally the great parting words of Jesus to his disciples to

"go therefore make disciples of all the nations baptise them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit."

He spent much of his missionary life in India and Japan. The Christian churches which exist in these countries today can trace their roots back to St Francis Xavier.

Francis Xavier devoted his life to missionary work in Asia and could not possibly have imagined how the fruits of his labours would be seen 500 years later. In the words of a tribute to the late Archbishop Oscar Romero: "We are workers, not master builders, ministers not messiahs. We are prophets of a future not our own."
